

Lowell CPC Meeting

Monday, March 23, 2009

7:00-9:00pm

at the Wang Middle School,
365 West Meadow Road, Lowell, MA

How to Talk to Your Kids About Sex

It's not easy to talk to our kids about sex. Even if they don't start the conversation, they have questions about their changing bodies, relationships, and decision making. Bombarded by media that often sends mixed messages or wrong messages, kids need guidance from their parents on this sensitive issue. Attend the CPC's March 23 meeting at the Wang Middle School and learn strategies for talking to your kids about sex, from techniques to create a trusting environment to tips on how to answer difficult questions. Sponsored by Planned Parenthood, the workshop will offer parents tools to communicate with their children about sexual health and making good choices.

In addition to the workshop, the meeting will conclude with an interactive discussion pertaining to sex education in the schools. A task force of Lowell educators is currently reviewing state sex education/reproduction standards for grades 6-12 and will make curriculum recommendations to the Lowell School Committee soon. The task force, school administrators, and members of the school committee are invited to attend the meeting to hear from parents regarding sex education in the schools. So mark your calendar: this is one meeting you won't want to miss!

Please join us or if you can not please send your comments and concerns to us through one of your school's CPC Representatives or Parent Liaison.
